Arizona Benefit Corporation How-To Guide

Overview

Unlike traditional corporations that make business decisions primarily to maximize shareholder value, benefit corporations aim to create value for all of their stakeholders. Status as a benefit corporation requires a company’s management to consider the impact of its business on stakeholders (such as employees, suppliers and communities where they operate) while also fulfilling fiduciary duties to shareholders. Benefit corporations also have some legal responsibilities that differ from typical business corporations. For example, benefit corporations must use a third-party standard to prepare an annual report to shareholders that reports on the corporation’s social and environmental performance. This guide will help to explain the process for forming a benefit corporation and for converting an existing company into a benefit corporation in Arizona. The full text of Arizona’s Benefit Corporation Act (Arizona Revised Statutes §§ 10-2401—10-2442) is available at the Arizona State Legislature’s website. As with most legal matters, you should consult with a legal professional before taking any action.

Forming a Brand New Entity as a Benefit Corporation

In Arizona, the process for forming a benefit corporation tracks closely to the process of forming any other type of corporation. You must file articles of incorporation with the Arizona Corporation Commission and must state in that filing that the corporation is creating a benefit corporation.

Step #1: Select an available name for your company

Your company’s name cannot be the same as or too closely resemble another Arizona corporation’s name. The name that you choose must also include the word “association”, “company”, “corporation”, “limited”, or “incorporated”, or an abbreviation of one of those words.

Actions

- Check the availability of your preferred name by searching the Arizona Corporation Commission Business Name Database.
- Reserve an available name for 120 days by filing an Application for Reservation of a Corporation Name with the Arizona Corporation Commission.

Step #2: Choose a statutory agent, incorporator, and directors

You will need to designate a statutory agent, incorporator, and directors. Every Arizona corporation must have a statutory agent that agrees to accept legal documents on behalf of the corporation if it is sued. The initial directors can be appointed by the incorporator, which should be documented in written resolutions that are signed by the incorporator.

Step #3: Draft your articles of incorporation and file them with the Arizona Corporation Commission

Articles of incorporation can be created either by using a standard form provided by the Arizona Corporation Commission or by drafting your own articles of incorporation. Below we describe what must be included in your company’s articles of incorporation, as well as optional items that are permitted, but not required, by the Benefit Corporation Act.

Statement of Status: Your company’s articles of incorporation must state explicitly that the company is a benefit corporation. This can be accomplished by including the following language to your articles of incorporation: “This corporation is a benefit corporation.”

Purpose: By virtue of the Benefit Corporation Act, all benefit corporations automatically have the purpose of creating a material positive impact on society and the environment. This is called “general public benefit.” You also have the option of identifying one or more “specific public benefit” purposes in your articles.

Optional: Include a Specific Public Benefit or Benefits In Your Articles of Incorporation

Arizona permits benefit corporations to include one or more specific public benefit purposes in their articles of incorporation. Examples of “specific public benefits” include:

- Providing low-income or underserved individuals or communities with beneficial products or services.
- Promoting economic opportunity for individuals or communities beyond the creation of jobs in the normal course of business.
- Protecting or restoring the environment.
- Improving human health.
- Promoting the arts, sciences, or advancement of knowledge.
- Increasing the flow of capital to entities with a purpose to benefit society or the environment.
- Conferring any other particular benefit on society or the environment as specified in the benefit corporation’s articles of incorporation.

Note: In Arizona, any amendment of the articles of incorporation to amend, add, or delete a specific public benefit must be approved by your shareholders by the minimum status vote (two-thirds of the outstanding shares in the company must vote to approve).
Standard of Conduct: The directors of a benefit corporation are required to consider the effect that their actions or inaction has on the following:

- The shareholders of the benefit corporation.
- The employees and workforce of the benefit corporation, its subsidiaries, and its suppliers.
- The interests of customers as beneficiaries of the general public benefit or specific public benefit purposes of the benefit corporation.
- Community and societal factors, including those of each community in which offices or facilities of the benefit corporation, its subsidiaries, or its suppliers are located.
- The local and global environment.
- The short-term and long-term interests of the benefit corporation, including benefits that may accrue to the benefit corporation from its long-term plans and the possibility that these interests may be best served by the continued independence of the benefit corporation.
- The ability of the benefit corporation to accomplish its general public benefit purpose and any specific public benefit purpose.

Your company may require directors to prioritize certain of the above-mentioned interests in pursuit of your company’s general public benefit purpose or specific public benefit purpose, if any, by including a provision in the articles of incorporation that it intends to give priority to certain considerations over others.

Standing for Benefit Enforcement Proceedings: Certain parties may bring a claim against a benefit corporation by commencing a “benefit enforcement proceeding.”

If the articles of incorporation are silent about this issue, benefit enforcement proceedings may be commenced only by:

- the benefit corporation itself;
- a director of the benefit corporation;
- a shareholder or a group of shareholders owning 5% or more of the outstanding shares of the benefit corporation; or
- a shareholder or a group of shareholders owning 2% or more of the outstanding equity of the benefit corporation’s parent entity.

You may also include a provision in your articles of incorporation to authorize any other person or group to commence a benefit enforcement proceeding.
Using Arizona’s Standard Form to Create Your Articles of Incorporation

Required Items

- Access the For-Profit or Professional Corporations form via the Arizona Corporation Commission’s website.
- Complete the form by following the accompanying instructions.
- Ensure that your purpose as a benefit corporation is clearly stated in a separate provision.
- Include the signature of each incorporator, and indicate that each person is signing in the capacity as an incorporator.

Drafting Your Articles of Incorporation Without a Standard Form

Required Actions

- Put the provisions in the order in which they appear in the statute.
- Follow as closely as possible the wording of the statute.
- Do not forget to include the provision stating that the corporation is a benefit corporation.

Optional

- Include one or more specific public benefit purpose(s).
- Identify one or more considerations that the board must prioritize over other considerations.
- Identify additional persons who are authorized to commence a benefit enforcement proceeding.

In Arizona, you are required to include a “Certificate of Disclosure” when you file your articles of incorporation with the Arizona Corporation Commission. This certificate requires you to disclose whether any officer, director, trustee, incorporator or owner of more than 10% of the outstanding shares in the company has been convicted of a felony related to securities, consumer fraud, antitrust or any crime related to fraud or misrepresentation.
Step #4: Publicize your newly-formed benefit corporation after it is approved by the Arizona Corporation Commission

Actions

- Publish a copy of your articles of incorporation within 60 days after the Arizona Corporation Commission processes and approves your filing. Arizona requires that you publish a full copy of your articles of incorporation in a newspaper of general circulation in the county that is your corporation’s known place of business for three consecutive publications.

  Note: The notice of approval that you may receive from the Arizona Corporation Commission will specify further steps that you will need to take to adequately publish your articles of incorporation.

Step #5: Draft corporate bylaws to establish governance rules for your business

Actions

- Consider some of the unique responsibilities of benefit corporations before crafting your bylaws.

  Note: Arizona benefit corporations must file an annual benefit report each year. Consider including procedures for the creation of this report in your bylaws to help ensure that your business and its purposes are aligned.

Step #6: Draft resolutions to be adopted at an initial meeting of the directors or by unanimous written consent in lieu of a meeting

After your corporation is formed or in connection with its formation, you should hold a meeting of the directors, at which the board’s resolutions are adopted and recorded in corporate minutes. Alternatively, a meeting of the directors is not required if all directors consent in a signed writing to the proposed resolutions and those consents are included in the corporation’s minutes or filed with the corporate records.
Benefit Corporation

Actions

- Hold your first board of directors meeting or obtain written consent to:
  - Appoint corporate officers.
  - Adopt bylaws.
  - Authorize the issuance of stock.
  - Authorize, approve, and ratify any other preliminary tasks related to the formation of the benefit corporation.

Step #7: Post-formation considerations

After forming your benefit corporation, you should consider taking additional steps to address requirements unique to benefit corporations in Arizona. For example, you can establish procedures for filing the “annual benefit report,” which must be filed with the Arizona Corporation Commission. Additionally, you must provide the annual benefit report to your shareholders within 120 days following the end of the benefit corporation’s fiscal year. Your benefit report should be accessible free of charge to the public. Arizona also requires the benefit corporation to post the report to the public portion of the company’s website. For help with generating your annual benefit report, access the online tool here.

The preparation of your annual benefit report requires your company to choose a standard for defining, reporting, and assessing your corporation’s overall corporate social and environmental performance. This is known as the “third-party standard.” The standard you select must be comprehensive, independent, credible, and transparent. For more information on third-party standards, visit benefitcorp.net.

Actions

- Choose a third-party standard.
- Set a timeline with key dates for the preparation and filing of your annual benefit report.
- Deliver your report to each shareholder within 120 days of the end of the fiscal year.
- File your report with the Arizona Corporation Commission within 120 days of the end of the fiscal year.
- Post the annual report on your website.

Converting Your Company into a Benefit Corporation

An existing corporation can become a benefit corporation by amending its articles of incorporation to include a statement that the organization is a benefit corporation. This How-To Guide addresses the steps required for an existing corporation to become a benefit corporation in Arizona.

For entities like Limited Liability Companies, Limited Partnerships, or other types of entities that are not standard business corporations, transitioning to a benefit corporation must be accomplished through a conversion or merger. If your existing company is not a business corporation and you would like it to become one, you should seek the assistance of a legal professional.

Step #1: Conduct due diligence and plan ahead

There are no tax implications for an existing corporation that elects to become a benefit corporation, but this transition may impact your organization in other ways. You should review your corporate documents and contracts to determine if any updates or changes may be necessary or desirable after your company becomes a benefit corporation. You should also consider all of the changes and steps that you may need to take as you transition your business into a benefit corporation, like putting procedures in place to measure your social and environmental impact.

• Review corporate charter, bylaws and any voting or other shareholder agreements to determine if any consents, notices or other actions are required in connection with your company’s amendment of its articles of incorporation. |

Step #2: Draft amendments to the articles of incorporation

You must amend the articles of incorporation to include a statement that your company is a benefit corporation. You can do this by completing and filing Form C014.001, “Articles of Amendment” which can be found at the Arizona Corporation Commission’s website. If you originally drafted your articles of incorporation, you may draft your own amendments and file them with the Commission. Below we describe what amendments to the articles of incorporation you must make, as well as optional amendments that are permitted, but not required, by the Benefit Corporation Act.

Statement of Status: You must include an amendment to the articles of incorporation that states explicitly that the company is a benefit corporation. This can be accomplished by drafting an amendment that includes the following language: “This corporation is a benefit corporation.”

Purpose: By virtue of the Benefit Corporation Act, all benefit corporations automatically have the purpose of creating a material positive impact on society and the environment. This is called “general public benefit.” You also have the option of amending the articles of incorporation to identify one or more “specific public benefit” purposes in your articles.
Optional: Include Specific Public Benefits In Your Articles of Incorporation

Arizona permits benefit corporations to include one or more specific public benefit purposes in their articles of incorporation. Examples of “specific public benefits” include:

- Providing low-income or underserved individuals or communities with beneficial products or services.
- Promoting economic opportunity for individuals or communities beyond the creation of jobs in the normal course of business.
- Protecting or restoring the environment.
- Improving human health.
- Promoting the arts, sciences, or advancement of knowledge.
- Increasing the flow of capital to entities with a purpose to benefit society or the environment.
- Conferring any other particular benefit on society or the environment as specified in the benefit corporation’s articles of incorporation.

Note: In Arizona, you may amend the articles of incorporation to amend, add, or delete a specific public benefit if approved by your shareholders in a minimum status vote (two-thirds of the outstanding shares in the company must vote to approve).

Your company may amend the articles of incorporation to include the following optional provisions or deviations from the default provisions of Arizona’s Benefit Corporation Act:

Standard of Conduct: The directors of a benefit corporation are required to consider the effect that their actions or inaction has on the following:

- The shareholders of the benefit corporation.
- The employees and workforce of the benefit corporation, its subsidiaries, and its suppliers.
- The interests of customers as beneficiaries of the general public benefit or specific public benefit purposes of the benefit corporation.
- Community and societal factors, including those of each community in which offices or facilities of the benefit corporation, its subsidiaries, or its suppliers are located.
- The local and global environment.
- The short-term and long-term interests of the benefit corporation, including benefits that may accrue to the benefit corporation from its long-term plans and the possibility that these interests may be best served by the continued independence of the benefit corporation.
- The ability of the benefit corporation to accomplish its general public benefit purpose and any specific public benefit purpose.

You may amend the articles of incorporation to require directors to prioritize certain of the above-mentioned interests in pursuit of your company’s general public benefit purpose or specific public benefit purpose, if any, by including a provision in the articles of incorporation that it intends to give priority to certain considerations over others.
Standing for Benefit Enforcement Proceedings: Certain parties may bring a claim against a benefit corporation by commencing a “benefit enforcement proceeding.”

If the articles of incorporation are silent about this issue, benefit enforcement proceedings may be commenced only by:
- the benefit corporation itself;
- a director of the benefit corporation;
- a shareholder or a group of shareholders owning 5% or more of the outstanding shares of the benefit corporation; or
- a shareholder or a group of shareholders owning 2% or more of the outstanding equity of the benefit corporation’s parent entity.

You may also include a provision in your articles of incorporation to authorize any other person or group to commence a benefit enforcement proceeding.

Optional Amendments

- Include one or more specific public benefit purpose(s).
- Alter or eliminate the liability shield.
- Include a provision for mandatory indemnification for directors and officers.
- Identify a consideration or considerations that the board must prioritize over other considerations.
- Identify additional persons who are authorized to commence a benefit enforcement proceeding.
Step #3: Obtain board approval of the amendments at a meeting of the directors or by unanimous written consent in lieu of a meeting

The board of directors will have to approve any amendments to the existing articles of incorporation and any amendments to the bylaws by adopting resolutions that reflect the board’s approval of the amendments, using the procedures laid out in Arizona Revised Statutes §§ 10-1001—10-1022, your current articles of incorporation and bylaws. You may convene a special meeting to vote on your plan or conduct a vote during one of your scheduled board meetings. The amendments must be approved by a majority of the board at a meeting where a quorum is present. The board must then adopt resolutions approving the amendments and record the resolutions in the minutes.

Alternatively, if your bylaws so allow, the board may adopt the resolutions in lieu of a meeting if all directors consent in a signed writing to the proposed actions and those consents are included in the corporation’s minutes or filed with the corporate records. Check your articles of incorporation and your bylaws for any additional requirements for board approval of amendments that they may impose.

Actions

- Review your articles of incorporation and bylaws to determine the procedures required for the board to adopt amendments to those documents.
- Propose your amendments at a regular meeting or a special meeting of the board of directors and vote on the proposal, or obtain the written signed consent of all directors authorizing the amendments.
- Document the board’s approval with resolutions recorded in the meeting minutes.

Note: If by vote, the board must approve the amendments by a majority vote in favor of the amendments at a meeting where a quorum is present.

Step #4: Obtain shareholder approval of the amendments and the election of benefit corporation status

Your shareholders will have to approve the decision to become a benefit corporation and the required amendments to the articles of incorporation. Shareholders can approve the amendment by voting at a shareholder meeting or by signing a written consent. When voting to amend the articles of incorporation to include the statement that the corporation is a benefit corporation, the amendment must be passed by a “supermajority vote,” in which the holders of at least three quarters of the outstanding shares in the corporation approve the amendment.

A shareholder meeting is not required if the action is approved by all of the shareholders evidenced by one or more consents describing the proposed action or amendment, signed by each shareholder and included in the minutes or filed with the corporate records reflecting the action approved. Check your articles of incorporation and your bylaws for any additional requirements for shareholder approval of amendments that they may impose.
Actions

- Review your articles of incorporation and bylaws to determine the procedures required for the shareholders to adopt amendments to those documents.
- Hold a vote on any amendments to your articles of incorporation or draft a consent and have it signed by all shareholders.
- Document the shareholders’ approval in the meeting minutes or corporate records.

Note: A “supermajority status vote” is needed for shareholder approval of the amendment to the articles stating that the corporation is a benefit corporation (“Supermajority vote” means the approval of the holders of at least 3/4 of the outstanding shares of each class of shares entitled to vote, regardless of any voting limitations in the articles).

Step #5: File the amendments to the articles of incorporation

File form C014.001 with the Arizona Corporation Commission. Alternatively, file your approved amendments to your articles of incorporation with the Arizona Corporation Commission.

Step #6: Publicize your new status after it is approved by the Arizona Corporation Commission

Actions

- Within 60 days of the Arizona Corporation Commission’s approval of your filing, publish your new status according to the instructions provided in the approval letter you receive from the Commission.
- File an Affidavit of Publication with the Arizona Corporation Commission.

Step #7: Post-conversion considerations

After forming your benefit corporation, you should consider taking additional steps to address requirements unique to benefit corporations in Arizona. For example, you can establish procedures for filing the “annual benefit report,” which must be filed with the Arizona Corporation Commission. Additionally, you must provide the annual benefit report to your shareholders within 120 days following the end of the benefit corporation’s fiscal year. Your benefit report should be accessible free of charge to the public. Arizona also requires the benefit corporation to post the report to the public portion of the company’s website. For help with generating your annual benefit report, access the online tool here.
The preparation of your annual benefit report requires your company to choose a standard for defining, reporting, and assessing your corporation’s overall corporate social and environmental performance. This is known as the “third-party standard.” The standard you select must be comprehensive, independent, credible, and transparent. For more information on third-party standards, visit benefitcorp.net.

Actions

- Choose a third-party standard.
- Set a timeline with key dates for the preparation and filing of your annual benefit report.
- Deliver your report to each shareholder within 120 days of the end of the fiscal year.
- File your report with the Arizona Corporation Commission within 120 days of the end of the fiscal year.
- Post the annual report on your website.
